READ ABOUT IT — IN SPACE!

Full Moon at Night

- I
- 1 Advertisements, or ads, are part of our world. We see them in newspapers, on buses and on huge signs on the roads. But what about seeing ads and messages in space? Imagine seeing a poster in the night sky with Happy Birthday on it. Or, imagine that you want to look at the stars but instead, high in the sky you see an ad for a new shampoo or a popular running shoe. Soon we may have messages and ads like these high in the sky, especially at night. Companies will want to use this technology so that millions of people will be able to see ads and messages from anywhere on Earth.
- II
- 15 A Russian company called StartRocket already has the technology to make ads appear in the night sky. Organizations that want to advertise big events, such as the Olympic Games, can contact StartRocket. Businesses can advertise their products, like new cars, in the same way. Even governments will be able to put important messages high in space. For example, they can warn millions of people at the same time about dangerous storms. Some businesses may prefer to advertise on the Moon. Two companies from Japan and the United States are developing the technology to do this.
- III
- However, many people are against ads in space. They believe there will be many problems. First, it will be hard for scientists to learn more about space. Also, there will be lots of garbage in space or on the Moon because of these ads. In addition, it will be hard for people to enjoy the stars at night.

But even so, we shouldn't be surprised if we soon see ads in the night sky.
